C.W. POST Vol. 9 Number 1 Winter 2007

The Newsletter for Brookville Friends & Neighbors of the C.W. Post Campus of Long Island University

AN EVENING OF DECADENT DESSERTS Residents Enjoy Confections from Around the World

Celebrating signature sweets from popular international locales, Brookville residents were treated to a private wine and dessert seminar presented by C.W. Post Executive Chefs David Leicht and Sean Morrell and guest pastry chef Robert Ellinger. The guests took a regional tour of wonderful confections from around the world. Exploring the rich variety of international desserts, guests also learned about the cultures, customs and traditions of various cuisines.

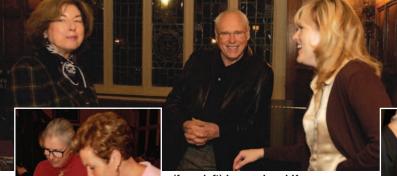

Chef Leicht discussed wine selections that enhance the flavor of a variety of food. At the tasting stations throughout the Great Hall, guests sampled exquisite wines coupled with delectable desserts.

(from left) Robert and Cheryl Goldberg, Shelly and Billy Goldstein

CLife is uncertain. Eat dessert first.

~Ernestine Ulmer

(from left) Irmgard and Kuno Weckenmann with Rita Langdon, Associate Provost & Director of Public Relations, C.W. Post Campus

(from left) Ina Stentiford, Lina Mesbah

(from left) Kuno Weckenmann, Laura Dougherty, guest pastry Chef Robert Ellinger

(at left) Wilfried and Rita Niederkofler

2
3
3
ge

Story Time at the C.W. Post Library

The Office of Community Relations recently hosted a story time series for the children of Brookville. It was a wonderful opportunity to introduce the children to C.W. Post's B. Davis Schwartz Memorial Library and also enjoy books and group activities, rhymes and songs. The children (and their favorite grown-up) listened to stories in a variety of forms (books, finger games, movement activities and simple creative dramatics) followed by an art project and snack. More dates are being planned. Invitations will be mailed to all Village residents.

Dressed in pajamas, the children brought their favorite stuffed animal to Pajama Story Time.

Fernando, Guy, 4, Gulia, 4, and Ilene Sachs

From the Editor

"This museum is a little jewel." I read this recently in the Oyster Bay Enterprise Pilot, which published a story on C.W. Post's acclaimed Hillwood Art Museum. I'll often pass by the museum and hear the chatter of local school children with the museum educator; or the sounds of music from one of the free afternoon concerts performed by any number of talented student or faculty musicians; or see the gallery abuzz at an exhibit opening. Did you know that when an art exhibit opens, our friends and neighbors of Brookville are invited to attend the opening reception? Year-round the museum presents exhibitions that cover topics from antiquity to contemporary art. The Hillwood Art Museum is but one of the many treasures here on the C.W. Post Campus.

In the early part of the new year, all residents of the Village will receive a calendar of concerts, recitals and events presented by the C.W. Post Department of Music and the Post Theatre Company. Most of these programs are free of charge and take place day and evening, seven days per week. Have you thought about coming over to the Campus on a winter afternoon and taking in a concert?

Also coming in the new year—the grand opening of our Bookmark Café. This will add another dimension to your visit to the B. Davis Schwartz Memorial Library, where residents of Brookville are extended library privileges. Whether you are here for a class, lecture, art exhibit or concert, we are pleased that you are a part of our Campus community. If you have any questions about our upcoming events or programs exclusively for residents, please contact me at 516-299-3500 or e-mail neighbor@liu.edu.

- Jennifer Fitzpatrick

Brookville's Mayor is Grand Marshal at C.W. Post Homecoming

Village of Brookville Mayor Richard P. Goodwin served as Grand Marshal for C.W. Post's annual Homecoming Parade on Saturday, October 14. He led a procession of student-created floats, club banners, cheerleaders, bagpipers, a PEP band and student organizations down the campus' Gold Coast Road. Mayor Goodwin rode the parade route in grand style in a convertible accompanied by his two grandsons, Richard Goodwin, III and John Pohmer.

"We are honored to have Mayor Goodwin serve as grand marshal for our homecoming celebration," said Joseph Shenker, provost of the C.W. Post Campus. "This year is a special one for the Village of Brookville, which is celebrating its 75th anniversary, and C.W. Post is proud to be part of this important milestone."

(from left) Brookville residents Larry Copperman, Nancy Copperman, Genevieve Johanas, Joan Huber, Don Huber

(from left) Zsuzsanna Goodwin, Ellen Goodwin-Pohmer, Mayor Goodwin, Irene Goodwin, (bottom left) John Pohmer, 6, Richard P. Goodwin Ⅲ, 8

Mayor Goodwin with 2006 C.W. Post Pride Award recipients Athena Colón and Daniel Ugenti, and grandsons John Pohmer and Richard P. Goodwin Ⅲ.

Village of Brookville Celebrates 75 Years

More than 200 residents and friends of the Village of Brookville gathered on Sunday, October 22 at the deSeversky Center located on the grounds of New York Institute of Technology to celebrate the 75th anniversary of the Village. In honor of Brookville's 75th anniversary, Dr. David J. Steinberg, president of Long Island University, announced that a Copper Beech tree will be planted within the University's Community Arboretum on the C.W. Post Campus in Brookville.

Dr. David J. Steinberg, president, Long Island University, displays a photo of a Copper Beach tree.

(from left) Tim Dougherty, Brookville building superintendent; Caroline Z. Bazzini, deputy mayor of Brookville; Richard P. Goodwin, mayor of Brookville

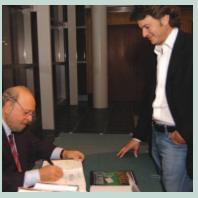

Heather Gibbs, assistant vice president, Long Island University, Brookville resident Robert Altholz, Long Island University vice president for finance and treasurer

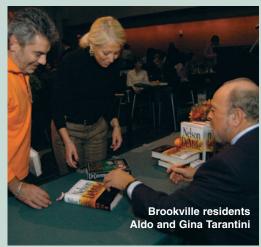

Popular Author Signs Books for Area Residents

Best-selling novelist Nelson DeMille visited the C.W. Post Campus for a book signing on November 13. The much anticipated evening began with a reception in the Tilles Center for the Performing Arts' new atrium followed by a discussion and question-and-answer session. Guests had the opportunity to speak individually with DeMille as he signed copies of his newest novel, "Wild Fire." Proceeds from the event will benefit C.W. Post student scholarships.

Jericho High School teacher Michael Levine brought his collection of DeMille books to be signed

Nelson DeMille signs a copy of his book Wild Fire for Brookville resident Mitch Solomon

Editor: Jennifer Fitzpatrick

Desktop Publishing: Ilyse Zincone

Contributing Writers:
Jennifer Fitzpatrick, Rita Langdon

C.W. Post Today is published by:

Office of Community Relations C.W. Post Campus Long Island University 720 Northern Boulevard Brookville, New York 11548

Phone: (516) 299-3500
Fax: (516) 299-2622
E-mail: neighbor@liu.edu
Web: www.liu.edu/neighbor