GNYC 401 Senior Thesis I (4 units)

Lieu, Jocelyn

Biermann, Soenke

Moran, Sarah

This online course, the first in the year-long Senior Thesis sequence, facilitates students' preparation of an analytical research report and the finalization of their senior thesis research proposal. The report focuses on the data gathered at the site of the undergraduate research, a site anchored by an internship or service-learning project. Through the course, students master senior-level proficiency in research paper design and execution, and further develop their capacity to write clear, well-reasoned, and effective academic English. In support of these projects, the course specifically develops field-note writing skills and documentation practices. At the semester's end, students draft their Senior Thesis proposals.

The Internship in Global Issues provides students with the opportunity to apply their knowledge of global issues in a professional setting relevant to the topic of their International Research and Internship Semester (IRIS). Through the process of securing the position and working under the guidance of a professional supervisor, students learn to identify, to apply for and to work effectively in a professional setting. Through completing a set of structured assignments, students also analyze the effectiveness of their host organization, reflect on their own capabilities, and investigate the relationship of the internship to their senior thesis topic.

GNYC 408 Studies in World Languages (2-3 units)

Required for all students in IRIS locations where English is not an official language. Where they are offered, students may take equivalent center-specific language courses, such as GCOS 120, 220 or 320; GEUR 222 or 322; GCHI 322. Elective Courses

GNYC 409 Classical Theories and Contemporary Issues in International Relations (3 units)

Minor: International Relations

Mazzucelli, Colette
Moran, Sarah

This blended online course critically examines classical theories and frameworks for understanding the international political system. It addresses specifically the ways in which the end of the Cold War, the Fall of the Soviet Union, the legacy of colonialism and the rise of non-state actors have challenged the traditional accounts of power and global politics. The course will begin by introducing students to the classical debates in International Relations: the basic units of analysis, the utility and legitimacy of the use of force, the balance of power, the nature of threats to peace and stability and the role of international institutions, etc. It then questions the utility of these theories for making sense of contemporary issues such as ethno/religious conflict, genocide (and other mass atrocities), the origins and consequences of terrorism, threats to global health, and the persistence of poverty and global inequality.
