

LONG ISLAND UNIVERSITY

Dear Members of the LIU Community,

Long Island University continues to monitor the coronavirus disease 2019 (COVID-19) pandemic situation. While the Long Island University Post Campus remains open, we are in constant contact with the appropriate health authorities. In consultation with the Nassau County Health Department, we are extending the closure of Pell Hall/Life Sciences Building until Monday, March 16, 2020. In addition, the University was made aware that the person who has contracted the coronavirus had been in Kahn Hall prior to having symptoms. Out of an abundance of caution, Kahn Hall will be closed following the same timeline. As previously communicated, the University has been and will continue to follow all Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) recommendations for cleaning and disinfecting.

To ensure all students have time to prepare during this week of spring break, the University has decided that all online instruction will now extend until the end of the spring semester.

For information on this rapidly changing situation, please visit the University's coronavirus website (<https://liu.edu/coronavirus>).

We will continue to update you as information becomes available.

Sincerely,

Joseph Schaefer
Chief Administrative Officer

Long Island University
700 Northern Boulevard
Brookville, New York